“Returning from Palm Beach Tuesday. Meet me at Train,” SHE WIRED.

He did—in his Rolls-Royce Roadster and his New Double-breasted Blue Cheviot Perry Suit whose different and improved lines told Her that she had not “come North” ahead of the New Spring Styles.

Other Notable Arrivals in the World of Society for Spring 1925 are: Blues! Blues! Blues! Not the kind you syncopate to but the kind you scintillate in. Not just blue, but blues. The Advance Spring Blue Cheviots in plain, diamond, diagonal and herringbone weaves. More Blues than in the combined repertoires of Paul Whiteman and Cliff Edwards.

This Spring—Double in a Double-breasted. You have a separate and distinct Personality in a 1925 Perry Double-breasted Suit—so different is their styling. If she prefers Variety in Fellows, you can give it to her in a Double-breasted Suit and yet keep all the fun to yourself.

Characteristics of the New Spring Double-breasted Suits—Broad Shoulders with Snug Hips. The Peaked Lapels are wide and Impressive. The Vests are somewhat pointed instead of Straight across and are being worn with the last button undone. Trousers of Correct Width and Straight.

Spring, 1925, Improvements in Single-breasted Suits. We think there have never been Suits that fitted so well as these New Spring Models. The Shoulders are Broad and set perfectly. The Coat hangs straight all the way down and across the seat. Snug at the hips. Trousers fairly wide but not too wide. Straight-hanging as a Plumb-bob.

The apple that rocked the earth

“I wonder why?”

In Isaac Newton's mind that question clamored for an answer. Many men had seen apples fall, but this man with the question mark mind found out why they fall—and his answer has helped us to understand the workings of a universe.

Would that we all could get a bite of that apple if it would inspire us too with the “I wonder why” attitude!

Intellectual curiosity is a great and moving force. It mobilizes reluctant facts. It is the stern drill-master which whips into shape that most invincible of armies—sure knowledge.

Curiosity, with the will to sweat out the answer, is the greatest asset you can acquire in your college course. This attribute is needed by industry today more than ever before.

The Pullman Philosopher

"HAIR is the meanest substance in the world," said the Pullman Philosopher. "Here on my bald spot where I want it, I can't raise it. Whereas on my face I have no use for it, but it grows there like weeds. I haven't shaved today because pity for my suffering face stays my razor hand."

"In the words of Munyon," said I, "there is hope!" And I made a dive for my sample case.

In two minutes I had him standing in front of a wash-bowl—coat and collar off and sleeves rolled up.

"It's no use," he groaned, "the water's cold and this razor is dull." "Forget it," was my brutal comeback. "Work that half-inch of Mennen Shaving Cream into lather. Use plenty of Mr. Pullman's arctic aqua. Don't bother with towels or finger rubbing."

"Now it's all over but the shaving," I explained. "That slather of lather has changed your bristling whiskers into soft pinfeathers. Scientists call this Mennen action 'dermutation.' You'll call it a miracle."

After a few easy razor strokes his face was as smooth as a girl's. The Philosopher wrung my hand in gratitude.

"Just rub a little of this Mennen Skin Balm into your hide," I directed. "It disappears right away—no grease, a pleasant odor, and it makes your face feel great."

"Don't thank me," I interrupted his hymn of praise, "thank the Mennen chemists who have created a Shaving Cream that makes whiskers surrender and a Skin Balm that makes faces smile."

Your druggist has 50c tubes of Mennen Shaving Cream—and tubes of Mennen Skin Balm at the same price. A word to the wise—

Take A Weekly Trip Home . . . Over The Telephone

"Pleasure that comes unlooked for is thrice
welcome"

. . . ROGERS

"It's Jim . . . Telephoning from College!"

This little folder has been distributed on the campus. It tells you how low the rates really are.

If your home town is not included in the list, see the front pages of the telephone directory.

The Long Distance Operator will give you rates not shown there.

Jim hasn't a motor-car. Jim hasn't a Phi Beta Kappa key. He isn't what you would call a Social Lion. Neither is he a star athlete.

Yet, if you were to ask the first man you met on the Campus . . . who is the best-liked man at college . . . he would, in all probability, mention Jim's name!

Because Jim has a reputation for being a good-fellow . . . one of those jolly, hearty, kind-hearted chaps who figure that the other fellow's feelings come first.

That this reputation is well founded, is proved by the fact that every week of his College Life (and he is a Senior now) he telephoned his Mother and his Dad. A worthy habit . . . a mighty worthy habit.

If you only knew how much your Mother and Dad would enjoy a weekly telephone chat with you, if you only knew how much you would enjoy these little chats yourself . . . you would certainly emulate the example of the well-liked Jim!

Memories that will last for years

DID you spend six dollars a day on your holiday last year? Probably that and a great deal more. And what did you do that was unique or thrilling? What did you find to carry away? . . . Sunburn.

Why not go to France this year and have an entire change, a mental stimulus, a new outlook, and memories forever?

You can book passage for one hundred and forty dollars on the big, one-cabin liners. French as France itself. You can even make a round trip for one hundred and sixty-two dollars, tourist class, with individual cabins, as is done by the college boys and girls.

When you get there—Paris, the capital of the world's gayety, the races, the new modes, the shops aglitter, the restaurants, where you dine in a marvelous way. The French Alps, the Pyrenees, are like nothing you've ever seen . . . villages perched on the caves of the world, and wild and gorgeous mountain passes. There is a lifetime of education for every member of the family in a few weeks' trip.

You can tour and live well on six dollars a day—bring your own car, uncrated, or rent one reasonably . . . Walk into France at the French Line gangplank in New York . . . at Havre, the port of Paris, just another gangplank . . . then the boat-train—and in three hours you are in Paris.—Write for booklet on France.

"THE VITAL MESSAGE"

(BURRO'S SHORT STORY)

Just think of it Horace dear; Popularity in eight and one quarter minutes! That was my success and it can be yours too if you are foolish enuf to fall for this dope.

When I came to college seven years ago, I was the dumbest Frosh on the campus. I have continued in that state thruout my long sojourn here. I never went out( this may be taken at its face value, not my face) and disliked dancing. But on the thirty-third day of March in my third year here I met HER.

How my heart jumped for joy. I had always wanted someone. And here she was, perfect in every detail.

My success can be credited only to the Burr. I had read the month before their great article on "The Treatment They Should Receive." In this I read many new and startling facts. "Let her sleep at the foot of your bed." This was a new one on me and it took some persuasion to keep her there. "Wash her personally at least once a week." She objects to this. Other facts I did

Sweet Mamma: Why don't you have any hair on your head?

Ditto Daddy: Same reason that grass don't grow on busy streets.

Same Mamma: That's because it can't get thru the cement, isn't it dear?

Mrs. Lamb after marrying the second time, inscribed this on her first husbands tombstone. "The light of my life has gone out but I have struck another match."

What do you think of that fellow?
He's so wet that when he stands on the campus
the worms all come to the top of the ground.

—BURR—

*'Twas said he died in great disgrace
Though no one knew what for
I alone that secret know,
His only pants was tore.*

THE GO-GETTER

"Ruth," called her mother's irate voice from the top of the stairs, "hasn't that young man gone yet?"
"No, mother, he doesn't seem to want to."
"And does he always get what he wants?"
sarcastically retorted the voice.
"He-he seems to, mother."

—BURR—

"One man, whose mere touch makes a woman tingle in every nerve, is a dentist."

—BURR—

"You have changed," said she, as he paid his usual evening call.

"Yes," he replied, "My darn laundry came at last."

Jack—So sorry that I couldn't have a date with you last week.

Jill—Well, you see, I was filled up every day.

Jack—Lucky girl, where'd you get it?

"TO PETE"

*You're a beauty, no doubt,
With your porcupine snout
And your chin that is all out of whack:
By the look on your "phiz"
You make it your "biz"

BURRO'S RADICULOUS VALENTINES

"TO WILLIE"

*O, Willie you're weary & sloe eyed, & dreary . . .
To you it's an effort to think:
Your lips need a cutting,
You're O K—for nutting,
Your head is a fly's skating rink.*

What caused their divorce?

He left word for the telephone operator to wake him in the morning and his wife misunderstood.

Said the cannibal king with a frown.
"For oft have I heard of the old proverb—
"You can't keep a good man down.'"*

—BURR—

Business Man—Can you give us a new slogan for our Hosiery factory?

Adv. Man—Sure. "Our stocking Covers a Multitude of Shins."

—BURR—

"I'm on my last stretch," said the garter as it fell to the floor with the hose.

NUMBER SIX

Published monthly by the students of Lehigh University. Subscription, two dollars and a half. Address all communications to the Editor, Bethlehem, Pa. All business communications to A. G. Blake, Chi Psi House, University Campus. All circulation communications, especially changes of address, to J. J. Unkles, Phi Delta Theta House, University Campus. Entered at the Bethlehem, Pa., Post Office as second-class matter.

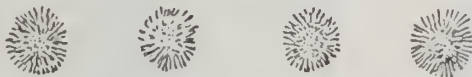

ORDINARILY BURRO holds very conservative ideas, but, to be in keeping with the general trend of the issue the old jack-ass, must needs let his hair grow, and with dirty collar and black fringed finger nails, mount his soap box, and shout on high:—

“Let all buildings and superstructures over four feet in height be demolished; then the students, selecting all particles of the debris larger than six cubic feet, should, chortling with glee, heave them as hard as possible at the instructors, assistant professors, and professors proper. (The only exception to this plan is in the case of the Physics Department. In this instance the offenders should be lined against a wall; the larger rocks should then be stuffed into the mouth of cannons, and fired at them with the velocity  $V^2=2gh$ , where  $V$  is the final velocity,  $h$  is the height of a building off of which you would like to throw the professor, if you had not destroyed the buildings, and the 2 is put in because they are physics profs. and you want to be sure to exterminate them.)

Using nice discrimination in selection, the students should then choose all faculty members of disciplinary committees, and string them to the tallest campus trees by their large toes. For those who have no big toes, other large parts of the anatomy such as the ears might be used.

The supreme retaliation is reserved for all bald headed members of the faculty and governing body of the university. The barren and arid portions of these gentlemen's heads should be heavily smeared with some of the Supply Bureau's detestable soft candy, and they should be placed in cages with swarms of green flies, that have been previously starved, and thoroughly angered by a nice long chapel talk, or something of the sort.

Having carried out this plan, every detriment to the assimilation of the true college spirit would be removed, and we would have an institution left which would much more resemble the eutopia of a college proper than does the present system."

IN passing, BURRO wishes to state that any article or drawing in this issue, which may have a personal meaning, is printed in the spirit of fun, and he only hopes that those who find themselves breaking forth in print or caricature, will have as hearty a laugh in perusing, as we have had in editing.

The Well Dressed Man at the Smart Day Wedding

There are, generally speaking, two sorts of weddings, the formal and the informal wedding, but in this article the formal day wedding only will be dealt with. Such a wedding takes place in a large house or church, or even at a hotel and many people are invited. The bride wears the traditional long veil and white satin dress, and the groom, to be in the picture and dressed properly for the occasion, should always wear a cutaway and a silk hat. With a cutaway, black striped trousers are generally worn, but still smarter are trousers of plain grey chevrons or worsteds in a light colour. Of course, a single-breasted waistcoat to match the coat is always in order, but an odd waistcoat of linen or flannel in white or pearl grey is much more appropriate for a big wedding. As to collars and ties a wing collar is the thing, and the first choice in ties is a puffed tie, or an Ascot, as it is sometimes called, shown above. The second choice is a full wide bow tie, and the third four-in-hand. The four-in-hand is much more suited to an older type of man than the usual groom, and therefore the first two are the better choice. Leaving the church, the groom should carry white chamois or buckskin gloves, and a straight malacca stick with silver, gold, or ivory knob. In the matter of shoes, there is a choice between black patent leather oxfords, black calf oxfords, and black boots with cloth or kid uppers. With any of these, grey or black silk socks are worn, and, of course, spats in white linen or grey cloth are also correct to wear with low black shoes. The groom and the other wedding attendants should always wear white flowers in their buttonholes, such as white carnations, gardenias, or small bunches of white violets. It is usual for the ushers to dress alike wearing the same collars and ties, and also for the best man and the groom to be similarly dressed with something to distinguish them from the ushers.

The informal wedding will be dealt with in this column in the coming issue.

The New Wrinkles in the Well Dressed Man's Sports Shirt

©VANITY FAIR

The shirt with collar attached, commonly called a sport shirt, but in reality the well-dressed man's preference in shirts for general summer wear, to be in the latest fashion, has one or two changes to be noted by the spring shopper. First and foremost of these is the long-pointed collar without which no sports shirt today can be considered smart. This collar is of much more generous proportions than formerly, and in order to set properly and give that neat appearance which is most necessary with soft shirts, it should be fastened with a pin close under the knot of the tie. The second most important change in the up-to-date sports shirt is the measurement of the wristband, which is now worn very tight, and should measure about eight and a quarter inches—not more. This wristband is fastened with one button. As to the materials for sports shirts, broadcloth and oxford are in the lead. Stripes are very strong, and the widely spaced stripe in brown, a dark shade of blue, yellow and pink, or blue oxford, is extremely popular. In broadcloth, the nicest shirts are those in white.

AT THE BALL

Behold the dance hall!

Girls so pretty and so fair,
Dancing with their backs so bare,
Couples clutched in fond embrace,
Writhing, wriggling, face to face,
Rocking, shaking to and fro,
While the chaperones come and go,
Never uttering a protest,
Passing all away in jest.

Behold the balcony!

A lover stands beside a maid,
Her hand in his is lightly laid,
Nothing wrong or nothing bad,
A sight to surely make one glad.
But alas! a chaperone near
Scolds and shrieks in tones severe,
And the pair turn back once more,
Back again to the ballroom floor.

And as they dance she whispers low
To her young and bashful beau,
"Hold me tight, O Johnny, dear,
Anything is proper here
At the ball."

Black and Blue Jay.
